

Myriam Shaw Ojeda serves as an assistant professor for pharmacy practice at The Ohio State University College of Pharmacy. She also works as Director of Pharmacy Extension and Public Health at the Ohio Pharmacists Association and The Ohio State University Extension. Her work involves leading and serving as a collaborator on statewide projects to advance pharmacy practice and achieve public health goals that align with improving the health and well-being of Ohioans. Myriam has been closely involved with the COVID-19 vaccine and testing rollout in the state of Ohio. In the past ten months, she has interfaced with state regulatory bodies and Ohio's Medicaid healthcare plans to promote pharmacist-led services to patients during the pandemic.