

Dr. Kris Tupas graduated with a PharmD from Purdue University and went on to complete PGY-1 and PGY-2 residency programs specializing in ambulatory care at St. Joseph Health System in Mishawaka, Indiana. Currently, Dr. Tupas serves as an Assistant Professor of Clinical Sciences at the Roosevelt University College of Science, Health & Pharmacy. In addition to her academic responsibilities, she practices as an ambulatory care pharmacist at Advocate Sykes Outpatient Center. Her focus in this role revolves around managing chronic diseases, including diabetes, hypertension, and dyslipidemia. She also serves as the chair of the college's Diversity, Inclusion, Justice, and Equity Committee.